

Let your patrons know:

The library is always just around the corner.

What is CLC?

The Colorado Libraries Collaborate (CLC) program allows patrons of participating libraries to borrow items from any CLC library in the state—for free!

Which libraries participate in CLC?

All public libraries and most school, academic, and special libraries in Colorado are already CLC members.

What do I need to know about lending through CLC?

CLC patrons are subject to the policies and procedures of each library they borrow from. Lending libraries collect CLC patron information and issue patrons a card or additional barcode for their existing card. CLC patrons may return materials to any CLC library, but items are not considered returned until they reach their original library.
